It will thus he seen that what would have proven a great benefit to people living on Wilkes street is to be thwarted. Were this the movements of the counsel. new road constructed that street would he relieved in a measure of many of the heavy trains now run over it. As has heretofore been stated, the yards of the Alexandria Brick Company are now the terminus of the road, and the railroad company having ordered their attorneys to cease from any further overtures with the parties occupying the land through which the road is destined to pass, these yards will probably continue to form the end of the road. This is unfortunate, and it seems to many in the community that some satisfactory means of settlement could have been reached between the company and those claiming the land. When the Manassas Gap Railroad was turned over to the Southern road soon after the close of the war it was supposed that all franchises of the former were transferred to the latter. The Manassas road had secured a right of way around the city, and why under the terms of that grant the Southern road cannot claim it is not exactly understood. Of course the company can apply to the court and have the land condemned, but the procedure would mean several months' delay, whereas could the owners of the ground and the officials settle the matter out of court the work of building the road would proceed at once.

ALBEADY HAS the United States gotten into commercial troubles with Russia and I aly by the arbitrary action of some of the government officials in raising the tariff rates which caused retaliatory action on the part of the two countries mentioned, which resulted in the virtual exclusion of some American products from those countries. This being the case that "Germany has a perfect right to regulate her tariffe" no fair minded man cau gainsay, but when the other countries begin to erect a high tariff wall against American products the people may take a hand and compel a reduction of the tariffs imposed by this country. A FEW weeks ago the quartermaster's department imported a lot of Panama hate-free of duty of course-and permitted army officers to buy them at a dollar and five cents spiece. This is a commentary on protection and shows how the army took so kindly to the goods that it was proposed to bring in a fresh consignment of five hundred more bats, but Secretary Root heard of the matter and nipped the free trade in Pansmas in the bud, as the object lesson was too

An important decision was rendered by Judge Bradley of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia this after-noon, affecting the rights of subcon-tractors of poetal star routes. In the case of C. Captsic Parker appeared again at the Navy department this morning and resumed his investigation of records and papers in behalf of his client, Admiral Schley. The door between Admiral Crowninsbield's office and that occupied by Capt, Parker was left open so that the Acting Secretary could at all times keep his eye upon the movements of the counsel. Every now and then some clerk comes into the room and counts the papers submited for the Captain's examination, and watches his proceedings. This has resulted in several angry interchanges between Admiral Crowninshield and between Admiral Crowninshield and and the attorney, who indignantly declares that he does not propose to steal or alter the records. Although there has been no official statement on the subject it is reported that Admiral Schley will select as his chief counsel Mr. Jeremiah Wilson of this city. The matter of the selection of a successor to Admiral Kimterly on the court has been left to Secretary Long. In the event that the secretary should accept Admiral Kimberly's plea of ill

DIED.

At the residence of his son, near Braddock Height, at 9:30 p. m., on Tuesday, July 30, 1901, ANDREW DELLA, aged 74 years.

We do not sigh when golden akies have donned The purple shadows and the gray of night, Because we know the morning lies beyond, And we must wait a little while for light. So, when grown weary with care and strife, Our loved ones find in sleep the peace they crave, We should not weep, but learn to count this

A prelude to the one beyond the grave; And thus be happy for them, not distressed, But learn to lift our hearts with love to God and smile, And we anon like tired ones will rest, and we anon like tired ones

If we will hope and wait a little while.
By His So Notice of funeral hereafter.
